FATHER, SON ON TRIAL FOR SCHOOL BLAZE

Are Charged With Setting Fire to Abandoned Building in January.

2 DEFENDANTS ARE CONVICTED

William F. Lerew, 24, and his 66-year-old father, Cornelius B. Lerew, both of Biglerville, went on trial in court here this morning on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of an abandoned school house, owned by the younger Lerew, at Brutsdown, January 14. The defendants are represented by Franklin R. Bigham, Esq.

When court convened at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the first of the ten witnesses was called by District Attorney John P. Butt and Corporal L. D. Gritman, of the state police, the prosecutor, against the Biglerville men.

The first witness for the commonwealth was Roscoe Worley, who resides in Conewago township, near Brutsdown. Worley said that he was told of the fire early in the evening of January 14 and upon going to the school house found the doors locked. Smoke was pouring from the interior and he could see flames by looking through a crack in the door.

Found Basin Of Oil

Worley said he sent a companion for a fire extinguisher while he broke open the door. The flames were confined to a closet under the stairway leading to the second floor of the structure, he said. The McSherrystown fire company was summoned and assisted in extinguishing flames that had made their way to the second floor.

The witness said that after the fire he saw a wash basin partly filled with oil on the floor less than eight feet from the point where the flames had apparently started. Windows on the first floor of the building were closed, but two at the rear of the second floor of the structure were open in the face of a stiff southerly breeze.

The next witness was Samuel Garvin, finger print specialist and photographer for the bureau of criminal identification of the state police. He identified pictures of the interior of the school building he had taken following the fire.

Exhaust Jury Panel

With one jury deliberating, the entire panel of jurors for this session of court was exhausted before the selection of the Lerew jury was completed. Sheriff B. W. Spence called spectators from the court room and the last three jurors were chosen from this number.

Both District Attorney Butt and Mr. Bigham had the right to 20 pre-emptory challenges. Over 30 persons were summoned before the following jury panel:

OFFICER USES FIST TO HALT ATTACK BY GUN

Local Resident, Now a York Policeman, Quells Man Who Had Weapon.

ONE SHOT FAILS TO FIND MARK

"That's what bay rum and booze will make you do," Nelson R. Kineman, 32 years old, 128 North Duke street, York, told York police Saturday night after he was arrested for a murderous assault on Patrolman George H. Williams. Kineman took a shot at the policeman and was about to fire another when Williams wrested the gun from him and felled him with several blows with his fist.

Patrolman Williams is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory C. Williams, Hanover street. A former state policeman, he has been a member of the York police force more than four years.

When Kineman appeared before Mayor Harry B. Anstine in police court Monday morning for drunkenness and disorderly conduct he was sentenced to pay $200 fine or spend 60 days in jail. He was committed to jail in default of the fine.

He also stands charged before Alderman J. Ralph Grove with assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill and carrying concealed deadly weapons. The charges were made as a result of his attack upon Patrolman Williams.

Patrolman Williams was assigned to locate Kineman after police received a tip that the man was armed and that he was drinking and in a surly mood. At 10:25 o'clock Saturday night Patrolman Williams drove a police car into Grant street after he heard that Kineman might be visiting in the neighborhood.

Two truckmen at Benzel's produce house supplied the information that a man answering Kineman's description had walked down Grant street only several minutes before the officer arrived.

Officer "Put Them Up" Driving cautiously through the dark street, the officer arrived at the Western Maryland railroad crossing, stopped his car and looked

ADAMS PRIMARY VOTE LIGHTEST IN MANY YEARS

Scarcity of Contests Blamed for Lack of Interest in Both Parties.

LESS THAN 25 PER CENT SEEN

Scarcity of contests in both old parties made the primary elections today in Adams county, the lightest in years.

Practically all voting places in the county reported a very small percentage of the registered voters turning out to the polls to record their preference for nominees of their respective parties.

On both tickets, chief interest centered around nominees for state assemblymen and state committeemen. On the republican side, there was some interest in the contest for nomination as congressman, there being a three-cornered contest. On the democratic side, Congressman Haines was unopposed for renomination.

As the vote progressed until three o'clock this afternoon, there was every indication that not more than 25 per cent of the total number of registered voters in the county would go to the polls before the end of the day. The polls opened at 7 o'clock this morning and will close at 7 o'clock this evening.

Comparatively few workers were on hand at the voting places. Election officers in the various voting places were disheartened over the light vote, since their compensation is based upon the number of votes they are required to count at the end of the day.

The vote in Gettysburg is typical of the vote being recorded in most of the polling places throughout the county.

Light Town Vote
Less than 500 votes had been cast in Gettysburg's four precincts up to 2 o'clock this afternoon. The vote is one of the lightest recorded in years here. At the first precinct, first ward, it was said that the vote was the lightest in ten years.

Early morning weather appeared bright and warm, but a short time later heavy clouds darkened prospects for a large turn-out of voters. By mid-morning, however, the sun was shining brightly and some were of the opinion that the vote might be fairly heavy.

A check-up at two o'clock revealed the following figures:
Seventy-three republicans, out of a registration of 437, and 27 democrats out of 279 had cast their ballots in the first precinct, first ward.

At the second precinct, first ward, there were 49 republicans out of 396 and 33 democrats out of 241.

In the second ward of Gettysburg, the voting place of which is located in the Kendeheart pool room at the corner of Chambersburg and North Washington streets, a total of only 103 votes had been cast at 12:30 o'clock. There are 1,050 registered voters in the ward.

Mahlon Rider, a new voter in the ward, cast the first democratic ballot, while Walter A. Snyder, candidate for the nomination for assemblyman, was the first republican to cast his ballot. There were a total of 68 republican and 35 democratic ballots cast before 12:30 o'clock at this voting place.

In the third ward, 84 republicans out of a registration of 581 and 41 democrats out of 443 had voted. The grand total at two o'clock was 410 votes out of a registration of more than three thousand.

Blooms May Be Out Soon

If the present warm weather and, perhaps, a little warm rain, continues through the week Adams county's famed peach and apple blossoms will be out in sufficient quantity and color to make a picturesque and colorful background for beauty-loving, nature-loving motorists, this week-end.

The buds are well formed and are ready to burst, especially among the early peaches and the smokehouse variety of apples, county growers reported this morning.

Within the next ten days the county's 20,000 acres of fruit trees will be so packed full of the large, white and pink blossoms that one will have difficulty seeing anything else but blossoms along the miles of hard-surfaced roads that wind through the fruit belt of the county.

The scene of the trial was the main dining room of the Eagle hotel. The judge was Dr. W. E. Tilberg, dean at Gettysburg college. The defense attorneys were Professor C. Paul Cenna and George N. Waters. The prosecuting attorney was Fred G. Pfeffer. Witnesses testified and the ten members of the jury, members of the Gettysburg Lions club, were: Ralph Z. Oyler, Charles W. Beacham, Henry T. Flames Destroy Old McIlhenny Homestead Along Conewago Creek Defective Chimney Is Believed To Have Been Cause of Conflagration That Caused More Than $1,000 Damage This Morning; Woman Runs Mile to Place Call.

MOST OF CONTENTS ALSO LOST; DWELLING BUILT FORTY YEARS AGO

A defective chimney is blamed for a blaze that destroyed the two and a half-story frame dwelling house on the old McIlhenny homestead in Straban township, along Conewago creek, eight miles from Gettysburg, about 8:30 o'clock this morning.

The flames were discovered in the second floor of the building by Mrs. Lillian Phillips, 28, wife of Merl Phillips, tenant on the farm which is owned by Cleason B. McIlhenny, Philadelphia. Mrs. Phillips was washing dishes in a pantry that adjoins the kitchen of the farm house. She smelled smoke and went to the kitchen to investigate. Finding everything in order there she attempted to go to the second floor, but was driven back by smoke.

Half carrying and half dragging her three-year-old daughter, Dolly, Mrs. Phillips ran more than a mile to neighbors to locate someone to telephone the Gettysburg fire department. Mrs. Phillips followed the lane that winds from the farm home to the Harrisburg road near Twin Bridges in the hope that she might meet her husband who had driven to a neighbors' earlier in the morning for a load of fertilizer.

She went first to the home of Ebenezer Sites along the Harrisburg road and from there to the home of Jacob Byers nearby. There Jacob Myers was sent to the home of Harvey Harlaub, nearly a mile distant, to the nearest telephone where he placed a call for the Gettysburg firemen.

Save Some Furniture
In the meantime Mrs. Phillips had sent Donald, Glenn and Kermit Jacoby and Francis Sites back to the blazing house where they succeeded in removing the furniture and other belongings on the first floor. With the exception of the contents of a few bureau drawers, rescued later by firemen, all the clothing, bed clothing and furniture on the second floor of the home were destroyed.

When the firemen arrived they found the entire second story and attic of the home in flames. The blaze had apparently started in the eastern end of the house. A slate roof and a stiff southwesterly breeze had helped to confine the flames to that section. Three pieces of apparatus were placed in use at once and two lines of water were turned on the fire. Water was pumped from Conewago creek, not more than a hundred feet east of the dwelling.

Flames burned through the outer wall of the house at several points and the second floor of the house collapsed. With the exception of the two rooms on the first floor of the west end of the dwelling the entire structure was destroyed.

Estimate $1,000 Damage
Firemen placed the damage at more than $1,000. It was not known whether the owner carried insurance on the property but Mrs. Phillips said that she and her husband had no insurance to cover their loss.

The couple had moved to the McIlhenny property, March 31, from a Myers farm near Five Points. The large bank barn and a machine shed west of the dwelling were not in danger at any time.

A dwelling house burned on the same property about 40 years ago, after which the present building was erected. Mr. McIlhenny is a descendant of members of the McIlhenny family who occupied the farm when they came to this country from Ireland in the eighteenth century. The farm has been in the McIlhenny name continuously since that time.

ITALIANS MAY RUIN CITY OF ADDIS ABABA

Warn Citizens to Desert Emperor and Not to Resist Invaders' Advance.

With the Italian column sixty-two miles south of Dessye, Ethiopia, April 28 (AP)—The advance guard of the motorized Italian column pushing toward Addis Ababa fought a swift, short fight Monday with a band of several hundred Ethiopian irregulars.

Fourteen Ethiopians were killed and many wounded by machine guns in the brisk engagement.

The irregulars fled to the hills and the column proceeded undisturbed.

A second column of Askari (native) troops reported to the fascist command it was going swiftly southward on another route, a short-cut of the direct highway.

Capital Bombing Threatened

Addis Ababa, April 28 (AP).—A warning that the Italians would bomb and "destroy" Addis Ababa if their advance on the capital is resisted was made Monday in leaflets dropped from a fascist airplane.

"Our mission is to occupy Addis Ababa and Ethiopia for civilization," said the leaflets, which were signed by the chief of staff of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, whose headquarters are now in Dessye.

"If Addis Ababa is delivered without resistance, we will not bomb it. Otherwise, we will destroy it all."

Ask Pledge to Italy

The leaflets urged Ethiopians to desert Emperor Haile Selassie and pledge allegiance to Italy. They warned that resistance was useless, asserting Italy already has captured the entire northern half of Ethiopia.

"We have destroyed Haile Selassie's armies and have occupied Dessye," said the leaflets. "Soon Harar will be occupied."

"We are your friends. Make no resistance. Otherwise, the Italian forces will destroy all."

As it dropped the propaganda the Italian airplane flew low over the city, its pilot performing stunts.

Princess Issues Appeal

An appeal to women of the world was issued by Princess Tsaiah, urging them "for God's sake to join together and get something done before it is too late."

"Italy's use of poison gas is the supreme test of humanity," continued the princess "if you let it go unpunished all are doomed. We will fight to the last breath and to the last inch, but if we fall civilization will be destroyed."

A communique from Ras Nasibu, commander of the Southern Ethiopian army which is defending the approaches to Harar, said:

"In a recent battle we captured airplanes near Sasa Baneh. Two tanks and brought down four Italian planes bombed Goba Ball province, using a great many incendiary bombs, and killed two Arabs and one Ethiopian."

Officer Uses

down the tracks towards Newberry street. He turned to look eastwardly over the tracks and looked into the barrel of a gun.

"Put 'em up, copper," said a voice. "Keep 'em up and get out on this side," was the second order.

The patrolman said he kept his one arm down, hoping to reach for his gun as he emerged from the car on the opposite side from the driver's seat.

But the gun toter sensed the officer's intention and barked: "Put both hands up." The officer did, quickly.

Slowly the officer left the driver's seat and moved along the seat to leave the car as ordered. His mind worked fast. What to do? It was a tight spot.

Now the officer was putting his feet on the running board. His hands were high above his head. He raised his body to clear the car.

Quickly, the officer brought down his right arm, hitting Kineman's right hand which held the weapon. Crack! A bullet whizzed past the officer's head.

The officer's other hand flew out and his fist caught his assailant on the jaw. As he fell to the street Kineman poised his arm once again and aimed the weapon at the officer. But the latter grabbed the hand and twisted the weapon loose. Several more blows from the officer's fist silenced Kineman.

The gun fired by Kineman was a .25-calibre Colt automatic. Two cartridges were left in the revolver. The shell from the shot fired was found in the street.

Taken to police headquarters, Kineman said: "I'm sorry for what I've done. That's what bay rum and booze will make you do." Police quoted Kineman as saying later that he was "hard up" and was "going out to get himself something." The gun belongs to Kineman's father, police were told. Police said that Kineman told them that he was "hard up" and that he had intended to use the gun to "hold up somebody."

Held for Court On Assault Count

Justice of the Peace R. M. Straley, New Oxford, announced today that he has held Melvin Duttera, 17, East Berlin, under $300 bail for the August session of court on a charge of assault and battery laid by Orville Zeigler, East Berlin butcher. Zeigler charges that the Duttera boy fired shots that struck him and three minor children as they walked toward their homes from the East Berlin high school grounds on the evening of April 14.

Duttera was given a hearing before Justice Straley Friday, April 17. At that time the justice stated that he would hold the case under advisement for ten days. At the hearing the youth admitted that he had fired the shot, but insisted that he had aimed at no one, but had shot to frighten a group of high school boys who had been annoying him.

WOMAN TO FACE CHARGE OF CODE VIOLATION HERE

None was injured in an automobile accident Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock a half mile north of the Mason and Dixon line on the Gettysburg-Emmitsburg road.

The result of the investigation by Patrolman George S. Harleman, of the Gettysburg sub-station, showed that Mrs. Russell C. MacDonald, 26, Middletown car depot, was driving south on the highway when she ran off the left side of the road while attempting to pass the machine of Ralph J. Riley, 23, Gettysburg, R. 3, who was traveling in the same direction.

Mrs. MacDonald is reported to have swerved her car sharply to the right after leaving the road and forced Riley off the left side of the road. His machine came to a stop as the front bumper reached a telephone pole. The cars did not collide. Damage to the Riley car was placed at $5, while the other machine was undamaged.

The officer stated that he will lay a reckless driving charge against Mrs. MacDonald.

Little Is Convicted

In a verdict read at noon today, Donald Little, 23, of 142 Breckenridge street, was convicted on a charge of assault and battery by automobile as the result of a crash in the fog on the Gettysburg-Emmitsburg road, early on the morning of December 9, 1935.

Little was defended by Franklin R. Bigham, Esq., who was appointed as his counsel by the court after Little appeared without an attorney.

Robert Pratt, 30, colored, Reading, driver of the car with which the Little machine collided, was the prosecutor in the case. On the stand Monday afternoon he testified that he was driving close to the right edge of the road when the Little car appeared out of the fog directly in front of his machine. He testified that the Little machine ran off the side of the highway with the right sides of the two machines colliding. Pratt said that his wife was injured in the accident.

On the stand in his own defense this morning, Little gave an account of the accident that was nearly opposite in most of the details to that of Pratt. Little testified that Pratt had been driving without lights. Little stated that he was on his right side of the road.

Shearer Found Guilty

The jury in the case, which returned a verdict after deliberating less than a half hour, follows: Donald Feaser, Littlestown; Irene Miller, McSherrystown; Edward Kim-ple, Franklin township; Harold Smith, York Springs; Wayne M. Keet, Gettysburg; George M. Hummer, Latimore township; George Binder, East Berlin; Harry W. Myers, Union township; C. R. Pottofor, Reading township; John M. Blair, Berwick township; Mrs. Clyde Shultz, Franklin township, and George A. Klinge, New Oxford.

At 5:10 o'clock Monday afternoon the jury in the William H. Shearer case returned a verdict of guilty on a charge of drunken driving. Shearer, a resident of Hanover, had been represented by Raymond F. Topper, Esq. The jury deliberated about 20 minutes.

Shearer was the first defendant to come to trial in this session of court. Trial of the case began Monday shortly before noon. The prosecutor was Corporal J. G. Warren who had arrested Shearer last November on the Lincoln highway.

The principal witness in his own defense, Shearer contradicted the testimony of commonwealth witnesses when he took the stand and denied that he had been operating his car while under the influence of liquor.

He admitted that he had taken one drink of whiskey early in the afternoon of the day of his arrest but denied that he had told the officer that he had consumed a pint of liquor shortly before his arrest. His confusion in the office of an Abbotsdown physician was explained by saying that he was "scared" at being arrested.

Shearer also denied that he had sideswiped a small bridge on the Lincoln highway near Abbotsdown and that he had driven from one side of the road to the other. He may not have followed a straight line in his drive up the Lincoln highway he admitted but stated that he "couldn't see very well" and told of an accident a short time before in which his glasses had been broken.

Cyrus Keefe, charged with operating a car under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was arrested Monday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Daniel Wolfe on a bench warrant handed down by Judge Sheedy after Keefe failed to appear when his case was called for trial Monday morning. After his arrest Keefe signed a plea of guilty in the office of the clerk of the courts and renewed his bail for his appearance Saturday in sentence court.

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Dirk Joris has witnessed the final scene between his older brother Rupert and Elinor Fleming—Elinor has broken her engagement to Rupert, because Rupert will not stop drinking. After taking Elinor home, Dirk has gone to a tent show in Jersey to wait for Elinor's cousin and her party. He has seen a charming bareback rider knocked down by a bully, and has in turn knocked down the bully. Now he is in the tent of Madame Chowdhury, fortune teller.

Chapter Six

Freddy and Isabel came in. Freddy carried an umbrella, and Isabel, all in yellow chiffon, looked like an indignant daffodil. Both glanced without enthusiasm at the shrine of Madame Chowdhury.

Madame had the somewhat blowsy appearance of a tipsy washwoman home from a costume ball, and a curious oily grace which seemed to annoy the colder and more matter of fact Isabel considerably.

"Waited long?" asked Freddy, a blond young man who was not himself when he was damp. Isabel asked for a cigaret and he supplied it. Dirk brought Madame Chowdhury's chair, and Isabel sat in it and smoker, her slim knees crossed, somnolence replacing the look of annoyance on her face.

She was like a portrait of Elinor, too youthful, too hardy to be an exact likeness. Darker, slate-colored eyes, more breadth of brow, less softness about the mouth. There was the same clear pallor, heightened by the yellow gown; the same ash-gold hair, the darker brows and lashes. Isabel at college had been accounted a prodigy at mathematics. Now she employed her faculties of deduction chiefly at bridge. Just Dirk's age, she was as weary of the world as Natalie was avid of it.

She said presently, "Elinor told you the news, I suppose."

"The news?" repeated Dirk. "Gage Seymour," she assisted him.

"Oh, yes," Dirk said. "She told us."

"Rupert took it, I imagine, with customary tact."

"With customary tact," acknowledged Dirk.

The rain had begun again, was pounding on Madame Chowdhury's roof, oozing through the seams, Freddy said to Isabel.

"For two cents I won't pick up Joe. Why can't he get his own car?"

"I won't give you two cents," said Isabel. "What's a little rain?"

Dirk went to the back door of the tent and looked out. Dark as pitch now except for the beam of light from Madame Chowdhury's lamp.

By that ray he saw that the man no longer lay in the mud. Silence, except somewhere an animal snarling in its cage. Suddenly there was the faint sound of applause and two swift human figures came running from the main tent—acrobats they looked like, or like the trapezists whom he had watched perform.

They disappeared into another tent, vanished abruptly out of the rain. Simultaneously Natalie came from the inner sanctum with Madame Chowdhury. Isabel and Freddy made ready to depart.

The appearance of the white running figures had reassured Dirk. They had run lightly, were nimble and muscled. They were fearless, or they would not be trapezists. "Pipolo fights for her," Madame had said. And the doors of the van were locked. She was safe tonight.

Tomorrow he would come back. He must see her again.

Natalie was bubbling delightedly. She had done a good deal of talking, had babbled lengthily at any stray query from Madame, but she had been apprised also of many romantic events to come.

It was decided that they would stop for Joe Vincent, a bachelor, sojourning alone in his summer cabin not so far away. Joe, said Freddy, had better give them something to warm them up.

"Can he give me a dry pair of slippers?" asked Natalie.

"I shouldn't wonder," said Freddy, not without malice.

As a matter of fact he did—little gold ones, smelling of Amour-Amour, and almost a perfect fit.

An agreeable host, Joe seemed to Natalie decidedly virile and desirable, in spite of the fact that he had been spending his summer in the woods painting pictures. He showed them some of his work. Not bad, they told him. Lately the rain had spoiled things, and next week he had to go back to town, and be a broker again.

"A broker," thought Natalie. "That's better."

They sat around Joe's log-fire till it burned low, then they fared on to Englewood where they danced until one o'clock, when Dirk and Isabel departed, leaving Natalie with the other two. Natalie would last till morning.

"It must be wonderful to be as young as that," Isabel said as they rode home. "I never was. But you, Dirk—you're young, too. Not in the way Natalie is. In your own way."

"What way is that?" asked Dirk. "Oh, you believe in people, and in things, too. Bedtime stories and—I wonder you didn't have your fortune told tonight."

They were passing Lowrie Wood, its forests and wrought-iron gates, its turrets and gables and shadowy stone tower. Above it an old moon hung, caught on the cone of a turret like a spent balloon. The sky was clear. The gypsy weather was gone. Decent faring now for any traveler.

Dirk drove more slowly, thinking he saw some one standing in the open gates of Lowrie. By the old moon's light the figure seemed that of a woman. Probably one of the maids, he decided, coming home at this hour, though what maid it might be in that body of ancient retainers he could not imagine.

The figure was moving now, moving with the lightness of a ghost or a shadow. It disappeared.

"Did you see that?" Dirk said to Isabel.

"See what?" she asked.

He told himself that he had seen nothing.

Rupert finds, tomorrow, that the mysterious figure is a person of great possibilities.

Mount Defeated By Georgetown

Mount St. Mary's failure to bunch hits at opportune moments caused their downfall before the George Washington university nine, in Griffith stadium, Washington, Monday afternoon, five to two.

De Angelis, Colonial hurler, allowed only seven hits while his mates pounded out ten off the delivery of Bill Sullivan who was on the mound for the Blue and White. The Mount was only able to push across two runs while the Colonials tallied five times. Several of the Colonials' hits were for extra bases, accounting for the three-run margin of victory.

Tony and Frank Apichella tried to keep the Mount out front with two hits each while McNamara, Leahy and Reilly each clipped for one.

The Mount scored one in the third and one in the ninth frame while the Colonials shoved across three tallies in the second inning and two in the fifth.

DIES FLEEING OLD ALCATRAZ

Convict Shot in Shoulder and Body Falls Down Rocky Slope of Prison.

San Francisco, April 28—Joe Bowers, first convict to attempt escape from Alcatraz Island federal prison, was killed Monday by a six foot plunge over a cliff as guards fired at him.

An autopsy disclosed the 40-year-old mail robber's death was caused by a bullet which entered his right shoulder and lodged in his lung. Another bullet struck his thigh. None of his bones was broken by the fall on the rocky shelf of the grim prison in San Francisco Bay.

Warden James Johnston said Bowers, transferred here from Leavenworth, tried to scale a wire fence around the work area on the island's west side, facing the Golden Gate.

Shot on Wire Fence

Guards shouted at him but Bowers ignored them. The guards opened fire. Bowers toppled from the fence and plunged down the sheer side of the island, a solid rock which juts out of the bay more than a mile from shore.

Swift currents swirl against the island, making a safe escape unlikely even should a prisoner reach the water. In the many years Alcatraz was used as an army prison, only two men, both strong swimmers, ever escaped. Guard precautions now are much greater.

Two or three trained swimmers have circled the island from the San Francisco side, a round trip of nearly four miles, but they were accompanied by boats to aid them if necessary.

The prison, former army disciplinary barracks, is rated as virtually escape proof for its population of 259 "incurable" convicts, numbering such notorious criminals as Al Capone.

Every device that science can provide to prevent escape has been installed. All visitors, who are allowed but once a month, must pass the rays of photo-electric cells, which immediately show the presence of any metal objects, such as guns, knives or saws.

Bowers, an Austrian by birth, was known also under the names of Ebner, Miller, Klehner and Furland Zwomriero. He had a police record in Seattle and in Oregon, where he was sought for transporting a stolen car across the State boundary. In Alcatraz he was serving time for a postoffice robbery in Butte county, California.

U. S. OFFICER TO LIVE IN CASTLE

50-Room Castle, 400 Years Old, To Be Home of Commander of Garrison.

Baltimore, April 28—A fifty-room castle built 400 years ago by Ponce de Leon in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is to be the future home of Col. John W. Wright, U. S. A., who has been in charge of National Guard affairs in Baltimore for the last two years.

Colonel Wright, who lives at 4202 Charlotte road, Guilford, has received orders detailing him to Puerto Rico for three years as commander of the island garrison. As military commander he will take up his residence in the Casa Blanca, reputed to be the oldest continuously occupied residence in the Western Hemisphere.

Built as Fortress

Built originally as a fortress, the Casa Blanca remained in the De Leon family for more than 200 years until it was taken over by Spain as a residence for its military governors of the island.

An imposing stone structure, surrounded by tropical gardens of rare plants, the Casa Blanca today is practically the same in appearance as it was 400 years ago, according to information received by Colonel Wright.

During its use by American army officials, modern sanitary arrangements have been installed, but they have been concealed so the interior of the building will retain its colonial appearance in every way.

Colonel Wright said Monday that he would sail from New York on July 3 for his new post. Between now and July he will take a leave of absence, he said.

The son of a general in the Confederate army and a descendant of an officer in the Continental army, Colonel Wright began his career as a captain of volunteers in 1899 during the Spanish-American war.

Prior to his assignment here, Colonel Wright spent four and a half years as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Missouri, but immediately before that he commanded the Fifth United States Infantry at Portland, Maine, a regiment in which his grandfather, Capt. Benjamin Wright, served during the Revolution.

When storing berries, sprinkle them in thin layer on dish and store in cold part of refrigerator. Do not wash them until time for serving as mold is liable to develop if much moisture is present.

WAR IS DECLARED!

WAR has been declared on man's worst enemy—the harmful bacteria. These microbes cause sickness, and diseases within the human body. Insurance men will tell you that 65% of all fatal illnesses are caused by diseases of the intestines or stomach, most of these result from foods kept in temperatures over 50 degrees. Harmful bacteria thrive in warm, damp places, such as cellars, window boxes and old ice boxes. More deaths are due to harmful microbes than all the wars between humans. War has been declared on microbes. Insure your health with an electric refrigerator. See your dealer today.

DRUDGERY and work is eliminated with the new modern electric refrigerator. Crystal clear ice cubes at your finger tips—plenty of ice at all times—frozen desserts and salads by merely placing in a tray. Different temperatures automatically. No bending, stooping, groping in the dark. Adjustable and sliding shelves. When your electric refrigerator is delivered to your home you will be freed forever from the worry and drudgery of old-fashioned refrigeration methods. War has been declared on drudgery and worry—free yourself with an electric refrigerator—give your dealer a call.

Out of the Past Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg
Times the files reveal.

FIFTY YEARS AGO
Local Items: It is said an assembly of Knights of Labor has been organized at York.

Frank E. Warren, of Gettysburg, is conducting a series of meetings at Hampton.

The recent rains and warm weather have brought out vegetation rapidly. The grain fields have improved wonderfully.

Messrs. W. C. Rogers and A. C.
Musselman have purchased from George W. Wertz the latter's portable steam saw mill.

D. S. Raffensperger, of near Hampton cut himself seriously in one of his legs with an axe one day last week.

The Salvation Army paraded the streets Saturday night with tambourines and singing, followed by a crowd of curious lookers-on.

S. McSwope, Esq., has accepted an invitation to deliver the Memorial Address at Westminster, Md.,
on Decoration day.

Charles Givler, for several years
a conductor on the G. & H. R. R., has gone west, and his brother William is promoted to the position.

On Sunday morning, about two o'clock, the chimney on the residence of Simon J. Codori, York street, was blown down by a heavy wind-storm.

The Bicycle fever is on the increase in Gettysburg. A number of our young men have secured standards and articles and turn out pleasant mornings and evenings.

Mr. Clepper last week sold to Joseph J. Smith the Rink building and fixtures for $600; roller skates reserved. Mr. Smith will probably remove the rink and utilize the materials in other buildings.

The Frick Manufacturing Company of Waynesboro has issued a circular to its employees, advising them against joining the Knights of Labor or organizing a trade union.

Marriages: Schick-Richter.—In Roxborough, Pa., by Rev. L. R.
Steele, Herman H. Schick, of Gettysburg, to Ella C. daughter of C.
B. Richter, Esq., of Wilmington, Del.

Fleming-Reichle.—April 21, in this place, by Rev. Joel Swartz, D.D., Joseph A. Fleming to Miss Annie
L. Reichle, both of this place.

Mundorf-Culp.—April 14, by Rev.
E. J. Metzler, Jacob M. Mundorf,
of Highland twp., to Miss Emma F.
Culp, of this place.

The entertainment at the Rink on Tuesday night, for the benefit of the "Band of Hope" was a very enjoyable one and largely attended.
All the ladies engaged in it deserve much credit. The "Fan Drill" and "Broom Drill" were specialties which were generously applauded by the audience. Mrs. Fannie Walter conducted the former, while Miss Mary King "captained" the squad of young ladies in the latter. The marching and countermarching, wheels, manual, etc., were given with much precision. Mr. Augustus Steck gave a selected reading and at the close auctioned off the dainty brooms which fair hands had carried in the drill, all of which brought high figures. The entertainment will net about $53, which will go to the purchase of a library.

The Easter services in all the churches on Sunday had special reference to the central fact of the Christian systems, Christ's resurrection. Most of the churches were profusely decorated with flowers. Dr. Valentine occupied the pulpit of Christ church morning and evening, preaching very able and interesting sermons. In the other churches services were conducted by their respective pastors.

On Saturday evening, Mrs. H. B.
Krauth, with her daughter visited Christ church where the ladies were engaged in arranging elaborate floral decorations for the pulpit and chancel. By some mistep she fell from the pulpit platform, sustaining severe bruises and wrenching the muscles of her thigh and leg. She was taken home in a carriage and Dr. Scott called in. It is hoped that the injuries may not be serious.

The Water Question: In another column will be found the reply of the Gettysburg Water Company to the summary action of the Town Council. Like some of the "strikes," so fashionable over the country, the difficulty seems to have its origin in unnecessary friction. The case, as presented by the Water Company, presents some new features, and we are inclined to think the action of the Council was hasty and ill-advised. The purchase of a steam fire engine creates a new condition of things in relation to water supply, not thought of when the contract was entered into between the Borough and Water Company in 1883. Larger mains are now needed along some of the streets to make the steamer available in case of fire. It is unquestionably desirable that the existing contract be modified or supplemented, but there is a proper way to do it. Corporations have rights as well as the public. The question of an ample water supply in case of fire, is one in which the citizens and property holders are vitally interested. The present difficulty ought to be promptly adjusted on equitable principles, and there should be no trouble in reaching an adjustment by judicious negotiations between the Council and Water Company.

Accidents: Last week while David Blocher was loading phosphate in the lumber yard of Col. C. H. Buchler, he slipped and fell from some trellis work, breaking the bone of his foot below the ankle. Dr. R.
Horner dressed the foot.

The youngest son of Raphael Sherfy dec'd, aged 3½ years, went with a hired hand to the field. The latter had occasion to leave the place a short time and on his return found the lad under the drag
with his thigh bone broken. Dr.
Diehl was called in.

Just Folks
by
EDGAR A. GUEST

IN HIS QUIET WAY
He was silent when the sages talked
the wisdom of the ages,
For his tastes were very simple and his knowledge rather plain.

He knew little save his labors, so he chattered with his neighbors
About growing phlox and iris and dividing them again.

He was not a man of action or the center of attraction.
When they called for wise suggestions he was never on his feet,
And the wrong he saw or heard of he would never speak a word of.

But he had the nicest garden of them all upon his street.

He taught his children manners,
without waving flags or banners.

He kept them fed and sheltered and a credit they became.

He had work to do and pleasure,
and the garden for his leisure.
And he proved man can be happy
without either wealth or fame.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC
Freddie Bartholomew and Dolores Costello Barrymore are co-starred in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," at the Majestic theatre tonight.

In the supporting cast are C. Aubrey Smith, Guy Kibbee, Mickey Rooney, Henry Stephenson, E. E.
Cline, Una O'Connor, Jackie Searl, Ivan Simpson, Jessie Ralph, Constance Collier and others.

Hugh Walpole, who adapted the story to the screen, has adhered to the original, which is laid in the England and America of the '80's.
The chief departure from tradition
is in the appearance of Fauntleroy,
for Freddie Bartholomew wears neither the long golden curls nor the plush suit associated with the character.

The story follows the adventures of the little American boy who became a nobleman and went to England to live in Dorchester Castle
with his grandfather, the irascible old Earl, who refuses to recognize the child's adored young mother,
'Dearest,' because his late son had married her against his wishes.
How the little chap's love works
a complete transformation in the gruff old fellow is depicted, and the menace is introduced in the person of a vulgar woman who appears to claim that her son, an unpleasant
little brat, is the rightful heir.

After many difficulties, "Little Lord Fauntleroy's" right to the title is securely established, however, and the Earl makes the child's happiness complete by bringing 'Dearest'
to Dorchester.

4 ON SUNDAY STROLL
KILLED BY R. R. TRAIN
Sidney Ohio, April 28 (AP)—Four persons, three of them children, were killed here late Sunday when a big four passenger train struck them as they stood on a railroad viaduct.

The dead were: Peter Attenweil, 70; Jack Palmisano, 13; Joan Palmisano, 9; Billy Palmisano, 7.

The children, all brothers and sisters, had gone for a Sunday after-

Today's Talk
By George Matthew Adams

INCENTIVE
I HAVE a friend who calls me up on the telephone every once in a while inspiration, for he is always full of fine courage and he has always been an inspiration, for he is always full of fine courage and he has always been an fighter. He has been my friend for a quarter of a century and he will remain so for as long as I live.

He tells me that he read an article where the writer explained that the so-called prodigies are really not abnormal but normal—the majority of people living, abnormal. It was a new interpretation but it sounded reasonable.

The most brilliant and outstanding of men and women really use, or express, but a fraction of what they are capable. We are too content to live half-lives, or merely to get by fairly comfortably. The incentive to rise, to excel, to be something bigger than we dream, remains either dormant or else entirely smothered from non-use.

He who accepts from another what he is able to gain for himself, through greater effort and courage, kills the greatest asset he possesses—the incentive to become free and independent.

"Heaven helps him who helps himself" will remain true so long as life endures.

I read an interesting story of an author's success recently. He spent over three years on a novel which he hoped would prove his masterpiece.
It was turned down by publisher after publisher. Then a kindly gesture by another author introduced him to a new publisher who accepted his book and believed in it so thoroughly that it became a "first seller" and now remains a modern classic. Also it was the necessary incentive which raised the author to fame. It gave him confidence and inspired him to write that he stands today among the prominent writers of England.

Those two simple words—YOU CAN—have revolutionized many a life.
Its answering echo—I WILL—has made men and nations great!

If economy is your first considera-

three pretty important reasons why you should make and own this simple daytime frock. Another is that it's a jiffy wrap-around which, after all, is the most comfy style of house frock, and one which offers you a shadow-proof panel, as well. Unequalled for a trim and slenderizing effect, it's sure to be popular with housewife and professional women who require a uniform with the ease of these roomy raglan sleeves. Too, it opens out flat for tubbing and ironing, which makes it twice as easy to keep up and span. Choose such pre-shrunk tub-cottons as broadcloth, percale or chambray.

Marian Martin Wrap-Around Slip Is Favorite In Small And Large Sizes

PATTERN 9816
Have you given a thought to the "inside" story of your sheerest warm-weather frocks? They'll need a bit of shadow-proofing, you know, and what better to accomplish just that than a wrap-around slip which au-tomatically provides a sun-and-shadow-proof back panel. Here's a comfy, easy-to-don style you'll find indispensable, beginning now and continuing through the warm months. Slip into it from the back, cross back sections and fasten the tie ends securely with hook or snap.
Presto! Your frock can next go on without a bulge or wrinkle, for you've the "perfect foundation." It's easy to make, so why not cut out two while you're about it. Choose crepe, non-shrinkable rayon or wash satin. Complete diagrammed Mari-

Pattern 9816 may be ordered only

Starhemberg in Defiant Speech
Warns His Enemies of A Civil War

Vienna, April 28 (AP)—Austria's powerful young vice-chancellor, Prince Ernst Ruediger von Starhem-berg, warned political enemies Sunday that his private Heimwehr (home guard) military forces would be dissolved "only over my dead body."

His defiant speech, made at Horn, created obvious resentment among followers of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, and the chancellor himself,
in an address at Baden, declared:
"Austria is not Italy and Austrians are not fascists."

Von Starhemberg asserted that if internal foes press too hard there will be a "repetition of 1934"—when the Heimwehr triumphed in a short but bloody civil war against socialists.

False friends surround Schuschnigg, Von Starhemberg said, and the Heimwehr plans to protect him
from them.

It was the vice-chancellor's first public utterance since Heimwehr leaders decided in Vienna Sunday to keep their arms and organization intact despite clerical and monarchist opposition.

Schuschnigg, talking at a political gathering at Baden Sunday afternoon and at the unveiling Sunday night of a memorial at the home of the assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, said:

"Clouds hang over the country. It is as if a general attack were again
being prepared to shake the country to its foundations and challenge
its freedom."

"We have to meet all classes of this general attack with open eyes, because only he who sees and recognizes danger is able to master it."

FLOOD BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

Measure Asking $70,000,000
For Control of Floods in State Faces Solons.

Washington, April 28 (AP)— Pennsylvania flood control projects to cost approximately $70,000,000
were included in the omnibus flood control bill reported favorably to the senate Monday by its commerce committee.

Land and damage costs, which the committee voted over the objection of Senator Guffey, democrat, Pennsylvania to impose on states and local communities, would be slightly in excess of $28,000,000 for the Pennsylvania program.

The backbone of the Keystone State projects was a system of 13 reservoirs to be constructed on the headwaters of the Ohio river and its tributaries.

The bill also would provide for 16
projects on the north and west branches of the Susquehanna river.
Designed for the protection of Pittsburgh and communities along the entire length of the Ohio, the system of impounding reservoirs would cost $55,215,000. Of this amount, land and damage costs
would total about $34,000,000.

Share Expenses
Because this would exceed the construction cost, the bill provided that the entire expense be shared equally by the federal government and the state and local agencies.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, chairman of the committee,
told the national rivers and harbors congress Pittsburgh's share of the cost might be as low as $15,000,000.

He explained that where benefits from flood control projects extend to more than one state, the land damage costs would be allocated among the beneficiaries by the army engineers. Copeland cited the Pittsburg area as a specific example.

"Damage to Pittsburgh people
by recent floods is estimated at $250,000," the senator said. "The city of Pittsburgh could well afford to spend $15,000,000 to prevent such damage."

Effective Radium Poisoning
Treatment Is Announced

Washington, April 28. — Effective treatment of radium poisoning, formerly one of the diseases listed as incurable by scientists, was reported Monday to the national academy of sciences.

Dr. Robley D. Evans, of the Massachusetts institute of technology, described how, in conjunction with Dr. J. C. Aub, of Harvard university, he had worked out a method for eliminating radium from the body and measuring the amount of radioactive element present at any given time.

As little as one-millionth of a gram of radium distributed throughout the entire skeleton of the body,
he said, is sufficient to cause poisoning with progressive breakdown of the bones.

With a new instrument, an improved "screen-cathode quantum counter," he added, it is now possible to detect such minute amounts of radium which sometimes escaped detection with old instruments.

The two Cambridge (Mass.) scientists found that by lowering the amount of calcium in the diet of a patient afflicted with radium poisoning it was possible to take from the marrow of the bones most of the reserve calcium stored up in them and at the same time eliminate the radium deposited there.

Dr. Evans described the case of a woman having radium poisoning whose jaw had been damaged to the extent that a yawn would have resulted in a spontaneous fracture.

Application of the new treatment, followed by feeding of a diet high in calcium immediately after it was found that most of the radium had disappeared, resulted, he said in restoration of the jaw bone to normal and complete recovery as far as could be seen a year and a half later.

Turning to other subjects, the academy heard Dr. C. G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, suggest the possibility of making long-range weather forecasts for two weeks in advance by noting changes in the sun's output of energy.

Variations of as little as seven-tenths of one per cent. in the radiation from the sun are known to occur, he said, and result in changes of as much as 10 degrees Fahrenheit
in the heat of the earth.

When the radiation begins to decrease, in January for example, a specific pattern of rising and falling temperature occurs in the city of Washington, Dr. Abbot said.

tions of the sun's radiation made at

Goering Is Named Dictator Of Reich Foreign Exchange

Berlin, April 28 (AP)—Gen. Her-mann Wilhelm Goering, Minister of Air and Premier of Prussia, took over another important duty Mon-day night when Reichsfuhrer Hit-ler made him supreme dictator over all questions of foreign exchange and raw materials.

Der Fuhrer took this step in an effort to avoid an open conflict be-tween Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Minis-ter of Economics and president of the Reichsbank, and the Nazi party.

Hitler recently asked Goering to attempt to reconcile Dr. Schacht, an exponent of the school of "liberal economy," with Nazi economists, in-cluding Wilhelm Keppler, Hitler's personal representative on economic matters.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 28 (AP)—
A father and his young daughter were killed and three other members of the same family were burned seriously early Sunday in a fire which badly damaged an apartment
house in nearby Hanover township.

The dead were John Kohn, 28, and his daughter, Elizabeth, 3. His wife, Mrs. Theresa Kohn, 26, and two other children, John Kohn, Jr., 5, and Mary, 7, were injured.

Eight other persons in the building fought their way through smoke and flames to safety. The only member of the Kohn family to escape was Marguerite, 2, who was tossed by her mother to safety after she found her own escape cut off.

The Work of a Thousand
Willing Hands

No four or five men in a community can say, "Let's organize a bank," and do it, unless the people want a bank and help
to make it a success.

Every bank, therefore, is the work of a thousand willing hands, building something which people feel will be useful in their lives.

They want a safe place for their deposits. They want a central place where the small, scattered sums of individuals can be gathered together and be employed in enterprises for the common good.

The story of a bank is a story of cooperation—of a new tool created by the people themselves for their own use.
